Small Business Workshop: How to do Business in Myrtle Beach
1:00 to 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, January 22
Myrtle Beach Train Depot, 851 Broadway Street
In conjunction with Grand Strand Freedom Week, small business owners and entrepreneurs alike are invited to join city staff and community members for a free workshop from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, January 22, at the Myrtle Beach Train Depot, 851 Broadway Street. The educational session teaches attendees how to do business with the city and other local government organizations. Procurement is the process organizations use to obtain needed goods and services that follows established rules for fair and transparent use of public money. Engaged small businesses serve as a vital part of the positive economic development of our community. This event helps connect local entrepreneurs and business owners with city and county procurement officials; and, officials will be on hand to share useful tools and resources to aid attendees in their quest to compete for government contracts. Questions? Call 843-918-2172 for more information.
