SSMC's 2022 INDICATORS REPORT:
Building Electrification in San Mateo County

2022 Indicators Report - Building Electrification

Sustainable San Mateo County's (SSMC) 26th annual Indicators Report explores the opportunities and complexities of building electrification, which is one of the most effective ways to combat climate change. The Indicators Report includes case studies, analyzes the current state of electrification in San Mateo County, and discusses how to transition from gas to electricity without leaving vulnerable populations behind.

The full Indicators Report, as well as a brochure and a video of the Indicators Report Launch Event, can be accessed at tinyurl.com/ssmc2022ir.

Experts at the recent Indicators Report Launch Event held at Genentech praised San Mateo County for leading the way to a clean, carbon-free future. San Mateo County itself, as well as 17 out of 20 cities within the county, limit gas in new construction. Keynote speaker and Executive Director of the Building Decarbonization Coalition, Panama Bartholemy said, "The heart of the movement is right here." He stressed the need for more leaders to promote building electrification. He explained, "You cannot address climate change without addressing natural gas in our buildings," and noted that gas emissions from buildings account for one-fourth of all emissions in California.

Among the Indicators Report's findings are:

- Gas appliances emit pollutants that are linked to adverse health effects, such as asthma and cardiovascular disease. A recent Stanford study found that methane leaks from gas stoves, even when the stoves are turned off.
- Those in buildings without air conditioners would benefit from replacing furnaces with heat pumps, which can also function as cooling systems.
- Many incentives and rebates are available to help people transition from gas to electricity, and more incentives are anticipated from the Inflation Reduction Act and California's $1.4 billion commitment to building decarbonization.
- More assistance is needed to make sure lower-income households are not left behind. As the number of homes with gas appliances and heating decreases, those living in them will pay higher costs to maintain gas infrastructure.

San Mateo County Gun Buy Back

Saturday, December 3, 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

The County of San Mateo, the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office, the police departments of Redwood City and Belmont, the City of San Carlos, and Citizens for a San Mateo County Gun Buyback, are sponsoring an anonymous gun buyback event on Saturday, December 3 at 1000 Skyway Road, in San Carlos. The buyback hours will be from 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. Attendees must transport their firearms unloaded and in the trunks of their vehicles.

Organizers of the event will pay $50 for non-functioning firearms, $100 for handguns and rifles, and $200 for assault weapons and "ghost guns" as classified by the State of California.

Recent statistics have shown that the majority of gun-related deaths in the county are suicides. It is our hope that these buybacks, which have resulted in over 2,000 firearms turned in, will help reduce the scourge of gun deaths in our communities.

For more information, call (650) 363-4800.

St. Paul's Christmas Concert

Sunday, December 18 starting at 4:00 p.m.

Now in its 7th year, the St. Paul's Christmas Concert is fast becoming a tradition for many local families. This year's concert, on Sunday December 18 at 4:00 p.m., will once again feature St. Paul's acclaimed choir, as well as a string quintet, harp, piano and St. Paul's 1929 Skinner organ. The choir is directed by Dr. Susan Jane Matthews.

The concert will open with a celebratory nod to the 150th anniversary of the birth of Ralph Vaughan Williams, with a performance of his choral fantasia on English Christmas carols for choir, soloist, string quintet, and organ. A set of five works will follow in a journey of Christmas music through the ages, ranging from 9th-century Byzantine chant, to a piano trio by mid-19th century composer Fanny Hensel, to a choral piece by the contemporary Canadian composer Jessica French. The program will close with a fun arrangement of the Twelve Days of Christmas that was created for the choir of Wells Cathedral, where in July the choir of St. Paul's served a week-long residency.
